Odds makers primarily employ three-way moneyline bets in two sports, hockey and soccer.

Unsurprisingly, this is because these two sports are significantly more likely to end in a tie or draw.

As you can see, the option of a draw is listed in the same fashion as choosing either team as the outright victor.

Two-way moneylines betting on the NHL ask you to pick a side to win outright, even if the game goes to overtime or ends in a shootout.

Three-way moneyline betting is just one of numerous ways to expand your horizons betting on sports.

What Makes the Best Gambling VPN? It's important to pick a virtual private network that is right for you and your online activities - in this case, for accessing online gambling sites.

Many gambling sites try to identify VPN usage and then block access.

The VPN is just helping you access the sites - it doesn't make it legal.

If you were to get caught gambling in a state or country where it's banned, you could end up facing jail time or landing a hefty fine.

That said, you can still face limitations when using these, such as a small server network, slower speeds or a limited data cap.

Final Thoughts: Best VPNs for Gambling Online Just because you gamble online doesn't mean you should gamble with your security.

Do you gamble online? Have you tried to access betting websites with a virtual private network? Did it work for you? Which VPN service did you use? Have your say and let us know in the comments below.

As always, thanks for reading.

The reality is that if we go back a decade in time, only a few major cities across the country have had the privilege to count on a decent internet connection, and even those available provided a suffering service.

There aren't any local bookmakers inside the country due to restrictions imposed by the local government. Bettors have to pay taxes in case they land winners in some sports. Nowadays, things have improved in the country and the online betting industry is beginning to blossom.

? Is it legal to place online bets in Zimbabwe? As long as the bookmaker is international, yes.
