Ravi's assent, on April 7, to the Bill prohibiting online gambling and regulating online games in the State, has brought closure to a controversial issue. Almost all parties, including the AIADMK and the BJP, have backed the legislation, now called the Tamil Nadu Prohibition of Online Gambling and Regulation of Online Games Act.

The passage of the Bill has seen ups and downs.

About a month ago, the Governor returned the Bill, on the grounds that the State Assembly had "no legislative competence" to enact such a law. In late March, the House re-adopted and sent the Bill back to him.

Ravi could have deflected criticism had he made his stand open, as he had done to a Bill that he had returned in February 2022, seeking exemption for students of the State from the National Eligibility-cum-Entrance Test (NEET) for medicine (this Bill is awaiting presidential assent).

Further, with the Centre having notified the IT (Intermediary Guidelines and Digital Media) Rules, 2021, the law is concerned - which has to be done in conjunction with the IT Act, 2000.

Even while seeking to implement the law banning online gambling and online games of chance (rummy and poker), the proposed Tamil Nadu Online Gaming Authority should ensure a balance: no restrictions on online games permitted under the Act as well as monitoring of online game providers.

Yes. New Hampshire became the 16th state to legalize sports betting when a bill was passed in 2019. However, when it launched in December 2019, betting could only be done online through DraftKings Sportsbook.

Also, sports betting at state lottery terminals will be possible through Intralot.

In this proposal, the New Hampshire Lottery would license, regulate, and oversee the program.

Daily Fantasy Sports and horse racing betting are also allowed in New Hampshire. Daily Fantasy Sports were legalized in 2017 and have never been an issue in the state.
