Now that sports betting and gambling have been legalized in many states, many bettors have questions about their tax obligations and whether they can claim their sports betting losses to offset other income.

It is best practice to keep records of all your sports betting activity.

You may need to provide documentation of your losses if your tax return is audited.

How do I report my sports betting winnings and losses on my tax return?

Most taxpayers can only deduct their sports betting losses to the extent of their sports betting and gambling winnings.

Taxpayers who take the standard deduction are generally unable to deduct their sports betting losses.

Failing to report your sports betting winnings could result in an audit of your tax return, assessment of penalties and interest, and even criminal charges in the most severe cases.
