However, there are some important exceptions to this law that could help protect you from the harsh consequences associated with an illegal online gambling conviction.

According to the law, the federal crime of unlawful online gambling only extends to certain operations.

The following are exempted from this law, and participants won't be punished by the federal government.

Educational or contestant-based games that may have prizes

People working in these operations may not be subject to prosecution.

However, gambling sites that cross state boundaries are outlawed by federal law

, and some gambling operations that are localized to a single state may still be subject to the specific laws of that state. Contact Us
