Lord of the Rings: Amazon explains why TV show has to be so ridiculously expensive

Amazon's forthcoming series will be one of the most expensive shows in history, with the first season alone costing approximately NZ$650m that's $465m US dollars and, in the UK, £327.7m.

In November 2017, the streaming service made a five season production commitment worth at least $1bn (£704.4m).

"The market is crazy, as you saw with the Knives Out deal," Sale said on a Hollywood Reporter roundtable interview, referring to Netflix's acquisition of two sequels to Rian Johnson's hit 2019 whodunit film for $469m (£16) Tj T*

It's worth noting that Amazon paid $250m (£176m) for rights to JRR Tolkien's source material, bringing their current overall Lord of the Rings investment to $715m.

"The number is a sexy headline or a crazy headline that's fun to click on, but it is really building the infrastructure of what will sustain the whole series."
